

The organization

Hólmavík is a small village in Strandir, the east part of the Westfjords peninsula with appr. 400 inhabitants. There is a swimming pool, gymnasium, grocery store, bank, museums and health care center to name few things.

Strandagaldur ses (founded 1999) is a non-profit organization in Hólmavík working on cultural and educational projects. The main project of the institution is to run and built up museums in the area with the main theme of sorcery & witchcraft and the history of Iceland 17th century. Strandagaldur has received many recognitions, for an example Eyrarrósin 2007, an award for outstanding cultural projects in Iceland rural areas. The museums are located in Hólmavík and in Bjarnarfjörður appr. 30 km north of the village. Strandagaldur also runs a small restaurant in Hólmavík which is open the whole year in the same building as the museum. Strandagaldur Art/Scholar residency is one of the institutions project.
